John Glover is a highly accomplished and experienced portrait painter. His subjects have included people from all walks of life, from grand official portraits of academic Masters or Chairmen of Councils, to smaller, more intimate family groups or individual studies. His work ranges from portraits in which he has captured the character and dignity of age, to others where it is the innocence of childhood that is portrayed. He works in all mediums from pencil to watercolour, pastel to oils.

Chalk pastels and pencils are capable of producing a huge variety of effects, ranging from sharp detailed realism to soft, impressionistic sketches. Whatever your taste, you will be taught how to achieve it. You will also explore the techniques you will need to create stunning portraits in charcoal and chalk.
